

Trophy Series Races

RMRR offers a series of monthly races for runners and race walkers. Our "Trophy Series" uses a unique handicap start system that provides runners of all abilities an equal chance of winning.

The series consists of 12 races, held early each month, with distances from 2 to 10 miles. Races longer than 5 miles also have a shorter 5K distance option. Trophy Series races are held at locations throughout the Denver Metro area.

Track Workouts

RMRR holds weekly track workouts from April through October. We run at Denver North High School at 32nd and Speer on Wednesday evenings at 6:15pm. Our track leaders will have planned workouts and recommendations for people of all speeds.

Guests are welcome, and we ask that you consider membership if you find yourself a regular participant!

Marathon Training

RMRR holds spring and fall marathon training races to help you prepare for your big run. Standard race distances are 10M and 20M on a 5M out and back course. You'll find aid stations with water and energy drink every 2 miles, and we'll have fruit and other food to help you catch up at the finish. Races are held on the Clear Creek and Platte River bike paths. All are welcome, and RMRR members receive discounted entry.

Volunteer

Rocky Mountain Road Runners is an all-volunteer organization, and our success comes entirely from our dedicated volunteers who give their time and effort so that others can share the joy of running. We ask all our members to help out in some way, and offer many different types of opportunities at our races and runs, as well as on our board of directors. We're always looking for people to get involved!
